Your Story in the Book

teeco

For Steph and Kevin, from Jeff

Your edits are in — every one of them. Here's the final version of every passage that mentions you, exactly as it will print.

You're in it because you're the proof that the playbook transfers. You came in as students, you executed, and now you know it well enough to support your peers — nobody else in the book carries that arc. Your Greenville home, bought sight unseen, is the single best answer to "does this really work remotely?"

Below is every passage, word for word, with your corrections applied — the $27K July, the $24K June, the $451K appraisal, "sight unseen," the peak-July number for Oak Hill, and the wording changes you asked for. One last read, then sign the bottom and it's done.

Where you appear

1. Chapter 3 — the five steps in action:

> My students Steph and Kevin net a steady $7K a month across two homes with this same playbook; their best month this summer topped $27K in gross bookings.

2. Chapter 5 — picking a market:

> My students Steph and Kevin, the couple you met in Chapter 3, net a steady $7K a month across two homes. Their first home, a $275K house in Greenville, South Carolina, grossed about $100K in under seven months, and this summer they pushed past a $27K month in gross bookings across the pair. And the second property is always easier than the first, because by then the playbook exists.

3. Chapter 16 — "The First Domino," your full story:

> Steph and Kevin came into our community as students. These days they know the playbook well enough to support their peers. They're a married couple. Stephanie is an entrepreneur, and Kevin earns a high income at his W2. If you're reading this book, one of them probably looks a lot like you.
>
> Their first home is in Greenville, South Carolina. They bought it for $275K sight unseen. It generated about $100K in bookings in under seven months, and it reappraised at $451K after strategic renovations and redesign.
>
> Home number two, in Oak Hill, West Virginia, tested them the way Myla's tested her. Contractor problems, delays, a timeline that kept slipping. They got it finished just before peak season, made it look beautiful, and it became a top performer. In its peak July it grossed about $17,300 on its own.
>
> They self-manage both. I helped them find and design the homes, but I don't touch the operations; they took it from there. As I write this, they've cleared $24K in June and $27K in July in gross bookings across the two properties, and they're in the process of buying home number three.
>
> I mention them for one reason. They prove that moving beats waiting to be perfect.

4. Chapter 18 — the community scoreboard:

> Steph and Kevin: two self-managed homes and a third on the way. Their first, bought sight unseen, made about $100K in under seven months, and this June and July they averaged more than $25,500 a month across the pair.

(Right after the scoreboard the book says these are among the strongest results in our community — gross, not take-home, and not typical — so nobody reads your numbers as a promise.)

5. Chapter 18 summary and the Conclusion each mention you once more, in one line: “Steph and Kevin averaging more than $25K a month this summer” and “You’ve met them all now. Myla and her $103K cabin. Ryu. Steph and Kevin. Diane and Jon.”

What the book does NOT include

First names only (Steph/Stephanie and Kevin) — no last name, no photos, no addresses, no employer, no listing names. Cities only at the level of “Greenville, South Carolina” and “Oak Hill, West Virginia.” Nothing about your finances beyond the deal numbers above.

The questions

1. Are you comfortable being in the book at all? (A no changes nothing between us.)
2. These now carry your corrections — $275K sight unseen, ~$100K in bookings in under seven months, $451K reappraisal, steady $7K/month net, $24K June and $27K July gross, Oak Hill’s ~$17,300 peak July. All final?
3. The descriptions now use your wording — “know the playbook well enough to support their peers,” “Stephanie is an entrepreneur.” Good?
4. OK with the sight-unseen detail and the second-home contractor story being told?
5. Beyond the book, may I mention your story the same way in marketing — posts, podcasts, the Amazon page?
6. Anything you’d like changed, added, or taken out?

If you’re good with all of it

Sign below and send this page back — it doubles as the written OK my attorney checklist asks for.

I, ______________________________, consent to the use of my first name and the details shown above in the book Vacation Rentals That Pay You and its related marketing.

Signature: ______________________________ Date: ____________

Signature: ______________________________ Date: ____________

Proud of you two. Your story is going to move somebody off the fence.

— Jeff