FROM THE BOOK BY DR. JEFF CHHEUY

Your Story in the Book

For Steph and Kevin, from Jeff

I wrote a book. It's called Vacation Rentals That Pay You, it launches on Amazon this month, and you two are in it.

You're in it because you're the proof that the playbook transfers. You came in as students, you executed, and now you help teach it — nobody else in the book carries that arc. Your Greenville home, bought and run without ever setting foot in it, is the single best answer to "does this really work remotely?" I wanted you to see every word before the world does.

Below is every passage in the book that mentions you — word for word. Read them, then hit the questions at the end. If anything needs changing or you'd rather not be in it at all, I'll fix it before launch. No hard feelings either way, ever.

Where you appear

1. Chapter 3 — the five steps in action:

> My students Steph and Kevin net a steady $7K a month across two homes with this same playbook; by this summer they were pacing past $20K a month in gross bookings.

2. Chapter 5 — picking a market:

> My students Steph and Kevin, the couple you met in Chapter 3, net a steady $7K a month across two homes as the conservative number. Their first home, a $275K house in Greenville, South Carolina, grossed about $100K in under seven months, and this summer they're pacing past $20K a month in gross bookings across the pair. And the second property is always easier than the first, because by then the playbook exists.

3. Chapter 16 — "The First Domino," your full story:

> Steph and Kevin came into our community as students. These days they help teach it. They're a married couple. Stephanie runs her own business full-time, and Kevin earns a high income at his W2. If you're reading this book, one of them probably looks a lot like you.
>
> Their first home is in Greenville, South Carolina. They bought it for $275K and have never visited it. Not for the closing, not for the setup, not once since. It made them about $100K gross in under seven months, and it reappraised around $450K after the redesign.
>
> Home number two, in Oak Hill, West Virginia, tested them the way Myla's tested her. Contractor problems, delays, a timeline that kept slipping. They got it finished just before peak season, made it look beautiful, and it became a top performer.
>
> They self-manage both. I helped them find and design the homes, and they took it from there; I don't touch the operation. As I write this, they're on pace for more than $20K a month in gross bookings across the two properties in June and July, and they're buying home number three.
>
> I mention them for one reason. They prove that moving beats waiting to be perfect.

4. Chapter 18 — the community scoreboard:

> Steph and Kevin: two self-managed homes and a third on the way. Their first, which they've never visited, made about $100K in under seven months, and this June and July they're pacing past $20K a month across the pair.

(Right after the scoreboard the book says these are among the strongest results in our community — gross, not take-home, and not typical — so nobody reads your numbers as a promise.)

5. Chapter 18 summary and the Conclusion each mention you once more, in one line: “Steph and Kevin pacing past $20K a month this summer” and “You've met them all now. Myla and her $103K cabin. Ryu. Steph and Kevin. Diane and Jon.”

What the book does NOT include

First names only (Steph/Stephanie and Kevin) — no last name, no photos, no addresses, no employer, no listing names. Cities only at the level of “Greenville, South Carolina” and “Oak Hill, West Virginia.” Nothing about your finances beyond the deal numbers above.

The questions

1. Are you comfortable being in the book at all? (A no changes nothing between us.)
2. Are the numbers right as you know them — $275K purchase, ~$100K gross in under seven months, ~$450K reappraisal, a steady $7K/month NET across the pair, pacing past $20K/month in gross bookings in June–July, third home in progress?
3. OK with how you're described — came in as students, now help teach; Stephanie runs her own business, Kevin earns a high income at his W2?
4. OK with the never-visited detail and the second-home contractor story being told?
5. Beyond the book, may I mention your story the same way in marketing — posts, podcasts, the Amazon page?
6. Anything you'd like changed, added, or taken out?

If you're good with all of it

Sign below and send this page back — it doubles as the written OK my attorney checklist asks for.

I, ______________________________, consent to the use of my first name and the details shown above in the book Vacation Rentals That Pay You and its related marketing.

Signature: ______________________________ Date: ____________

Signature: ______________________________ Date: ____________

Proud of you two. Your story is going to move somebody off the fence.

— Jeff