Your Story in the Book

For Diane and Jon, from Jeff

I wrote a book. It's called Vacation Rentals That Pay You, it launches on Amazon this month, and you two are in it.

You're in it because Gatewood Orchard is one of the proudest results of everything we've built at Teeco, and because your version of the story answers the question I get more than any other: "What if I don't have time to do any of this myself?" You're the proof that the model works fully done-for-you. I wanted you to see every word before the world does.

Below is every single passage in the book that mentions you — word for word, nothing left out. Read them, and then there are a few questions at the end. If you want anything changed, softened, or removed entirely, I'll do it before launch, no questions asked and no hard feelings. Your friendship matters more than any page.

Where you appear (all five places)

1. Chapter 9 — "How to Get the Money." This is your main story, told as the real-life example of DSCR financing:

> Here's what it looks like in real life. My friends Diane and Jon, full-service clients of ours, bought a home called Gatewood Orchard in the same corner of West Virginia as our other properties. It wasn't a true vacation home, so the 10% second-home loan was off the table; they went with a typical 15%-down DSCR program that underwrites short-term-rental rent (the right answer to the question in Chapter 7) and put $37,370 down on a $230,000 purchase, with a $5,000 seller credit negotiated in. One year later it reappraised at $322,000, and it grossed $81,210.38 in its first year live. If you're busy, notice that they hired Teeco for the whole thing (finding the home, design, setup, coaching, and management).

2. Chapter 9, chapter summary:

> If the home isn't a true vacation home, DSCR still gets it done; Diane and Jon put more down and their deal worked anyway, with every step hired out.

3. Chapter 18 — "The 5-Year Wealth Plan," the community scoreboard:

> Diane and Jon's Gatewood Orchard: $81,210.38 gross in year one as fully done-for-you clients. The model works even when you outsource every piece of it.

(Right after this the book says, about everyone on that scoreboard: these are among the strongest results in our community, shown because they teach — gross, not take-home, and not typical. So nobody reads your number as a promise.)

4. Chapter 18, chapter summary:

> Real operators, real results: … and Diane and Jon's hands-off $81,210.38 first year.

5. The Conclusion:

> You've met them all now. Myla and her $103K cabin. Ryu. Steph and Kevin. Diane and Jon.

What the book does NOT include

First names only — no last name, no photos, no town name, no address (just "the same corner of West Virginia"), nothing about your jobs, family, or finances beyond the deal numbers you see above. Nobody could find the listing or you from the book.

The questions

1. Are you comfortable being in the book at all? (A yes makes me happy; a no changes nothing between us.)
2. Are the numbers exactly right as you remember them — $230,000 purchase, $37,370 down, $5,000 seller credit, reappraisal at $322,000, and $81,210.38 gross in year one?
3. Are you OK with the home being named as Gatewood Orchard?
4. Are you OK being described as full-service clients of Teeco?
5. Beyond the book, may I mention your story the same way in marketing — social posts, podcast interviews, the book's Amazon page?
6. Is there anything you'd like changed, added, or taken out?
